

Final Analysis

Overall this project was fun to research and take part in. It helped a lot that we are all coffee lovers so we were truly engaged. It felt like a passion project. It was great working together with the head of each department. We are great at communicating together and have similar ideas and tastes so we didn't argue at all, and made decisions collectively. That being said, we did run into time management issues while working together. We failed to reach many deadlines and left too many things for the last second. This resulted in some parts of our project not being completed to as high of a standard as we would have liked. But regardless, we had great fun working together and have outlined areas where we could improve if we were to work together again on a given project.
